

To whom it may concern,

I have known Christopher for well over a decade and we have been both friends and colleagues during that time. It is without any hesitation, and with conviction, that I write this letter of recommendation and say that Christopher would be a strong and fantastic addition to any team.

For as long as I've known Christopher he has been involved with technology, either on a professional level or as a hobby. His technology acumen runs deep and he brings that strength to every role he has had, going above and beyond to fix issues even when his role hasn't been I.T. specific. He has built countless PCs, and even helped myself and other acquaintances upgrade desktop and laptops in the past. He was always our go-to for networking and general technology troubleshooting support amongst our social circle.

In our personal life he has always been a steadfast and reliable friend and that is something that he brings into the workplace. Through our work together he was always a dependable individual not only with deadlines and timetables but with problem solving. He has a knack for finding solutions to problems and isn't afraid to dive deep to find them.

In short, I know that Christopher will excel in any role he finds himself in, and any team that has the fortune of having him will, in fact, be all the better for it.
